The Center for New Music, a performance organization devoted to the late 20th and early 21st century repertoire, is the focus of contemporary composition and performance at the University of Iowa. The Center, like the internationally renowned Writers Workshop, embodies the institution's commitment to the vital role of the creative arts at the frontiers of human experience.

The Center functions as a laboratory and performance extension of the School's composition area, and as a repertory ensemble for the creation and presentation of contemporary music in general. The core ensemble consists of violin, viola, cello, and piano supported by Research Assistantships assigned by those studios. The remaining members that complete the sinfonietta ensemble are assigned by the individual studio faculty, typically for the academic year. The Center also serves as host for guest composers and artists.

The Center remains an advocate of contemporary music performance. Its programming reflects the range of current compositional styles as well as what is considered standard repertoire from the mid-20th century into early 21st. The high quality of performance results from working with a core ensemble, solidly grounded in the repertoire, over an extended period of time. New and more diverse audiences are carefully cultivated through outreach concerts, and the Center's professional reputation is steadily being established through CD recordings as well as through the collaboration of nationally-known guest composers and performers.

Finola Merivale is a composer from Ireland living in New York. She is a doctoral candidate at Columbia University, where she is studying with George Lewis, Georg Friedrich Haas and Zosha Di Castri. Her music has been featured at festivals such as Huddersfield, Bang on a Can, and the Contemporary Music Festival of Buenos Aires. Her works have been played by the International Contemporary Ensemble, Talea Ensemble, Crash Ensemble, and musicians of the Chicago and St. Louis Symphony Orchestras, amongst others. In 2021, she was the winner of the National Concert Hall and Sounding the Feminists’ Music Recording Award. She is currently working on Out of the Ordinary – the world’s first community opera in virtual reality, which won the 2021 Fedora Digital Prize. She has recently been commissioned by National Sawdust, Rebekah Heller and the West Cork Chamber Music Festival.

James CROWLEY

L’Extase Langoureuse

L’Extase Langoureuse is a setting of Paul Verlaine’s poem C’est Lex酯se – a poem also set to music by Fauré and Debussy (with piano). My inspiration came not necessarily from their famous settings, but rather from a desire to investigate French diction and French notions of scale, melody, harmony and timbre. While the listener may perceive some word-painting in the music, the primary goal was to weave seamless textural threads throughout the piece, using persistent metric modulations to unexpectedly shift the tempo and perceived speed of the musical flow. While not a lengthy work, it is a piece intended to take the listener on a diverse, concentrated and colorful acoustical journey.

Crowley earned his BM in Composition from the University of Illinois (Bronze Tablet – University Honors) and completed the MM and DM in Composition at Northwestern University. Formerly a member of the administrative staff of the Lyric Opera of Chicago, he also held a Teaching Fellowship at the Aspen Music Festival and taught at Drury University. He is Professor of Music and Chair of the Music Department at the University of Wisconsin-Parkside.

Irina Dubkova began composing at the age of five. After completing her college training as a pianist, she graduated from the Moscow Conservatory in composition and completed post-graduate studies with Roman Ledeniov in composition and Yuri Khlobopov in theory. At present, Irina teaches in the Composition Department of the Moscow State P.I. Tchaikovsky Conservatory, and serves on the new member committee for the Union of All Russian Composers.

Kelly Hill, mezzo-soprano, began her doctoral studies at the University of Iowa in 2018 as the Iowa Performance Fellow. As a student of Professor Stephen Swanson, she has soloed with the University of Iowa Orchestra, under the direction of Timothy Stalter, in Joseph Haydn’s Missa in tempore belli and Karl Jenkins’s The Armed Man: A Mass for Peace. She has portrayed the title character in Peter Brook’s adaptation of Bizet’s Carmen, and also performed the role of Jo March in the University Opera Theatre’s production of Mark Adamo’s Little Women.

Locally, she returned to the Cedar Rapids Opera Theatre as Suzuki in Madama Butterfly, and made her hometown operatic debut as Marseillaise in Mozart’s Marriage of Figaro with the Opera Quad Cities. Other local concert work includes appearances with the Chamber Singers of Iowa City, Cornell College, and an upcoming collaboration with the Quad Cities Symphony Orchestra with the world premiere of Jacob Bancks’ opera Karkinosa.

Kelly holds degrees from the Yale School of Music and the University of Northern Iowa, and has apprenticed with the Cedar Rapids Opera Theater, Central City Opera, and Santa Fe Opera. She is a two-time Regional Finalist in the Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions, and a former fellow of the Aspen Music Festival and School.

Forever

In the soul of every person there exist the most important things that remain, even when one departs this world. They stay forever, and they make the world brighter, more joyful and happier. Simple but eternal things.

Irina Dubkova began composing at the age of five. After completing her college training as a pianist, she graduated from the Moscow Conservatory in composition and completed post-graduate studies with Roman Ledeniov in composition and Yuri Khlobopov in theory.

performed regularly at the annual festivals, such as the International Orgel Gedike’s Festival, Leonid Roizman Organ Festival, International Moscow Autumn, Universe of Sound, Nippon Kokoro, Earino Spring Festival, All Russia Harp Festival and Meeting of the Friends, Winterreise, among others. Performances of Dubkova’s symphonic, chamber, vocal and choral music have been heard across the Russia and in many regions of the world, including Austria, Germany, Finland, Greece, Switzerland, and the USA.

KATHERINE BALCH

drip / spin
In drip / spin, these two verbs are represented and enacted musically by the flute and piano. Both drip and spin conjure evocative images for me: while dripping connotes a solemn, delicate, not-quite-steady sound and feeling, spinning connotes playfulness, dizziness, and repetitive cycles. Dripping also suggests an action that is irreversible, while spinning might involve a return to where the cycle began. The flute and piano play with and ponder the myriad of gestures these words suggest.

The music of composer Katherine Balch (b. 1991) captures the magic of everyday sounds, inviting audiences into a sonic world characterized by imagination, discovery, and a rich diversity of styles. Katherine is often inspired by literature, nature, and science, aptly reflected in the San Francisco Chronicle’s description as “some kind of musical Thomas Edison – you can just hear her tinkering around in her workshop, putting together new sounds and textural ideas.”

Katherine’s facility in elevating ordinary sounds through large-scale orchestration and dramatic narrative arcs has led to commissions and performances with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, London Sinfonietta, Orchestra Philharmonique de Radio France, Ensemble Intercontemporain, and the symphony orchestras of Boston, Minnesota Orchestra, Chicago, Albany, Indianapolis, and Tokyo. She has been featured with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, London Sinfonietta, Ensemble Intercontemporain, and Festival MANCA in France, Sunbury Summer Arts and Takefu Music Festival in Japan, and the Aspen, Norfolk, Santa Fe, and Tanglewood music festivals in the United States.

Nominated by violinist Hilary Hahn, Katherine was just announced as the recipient of the Dallas Symphony Orchestra’s 2020 Career Advancement Award. She has also been honored by ASCAP, BMI, the American Academy of Arts and Letters, Chamber Music America, and Barlow Foundation, and has served as composer-in-residence for Young Concert Artists and the California Symphony. In 2021, she will be in residence at the American Academy in Rome as the Eliot Carter Rome Prize Fellow. Deeply committed to developing inclusive, engaging pedagogical practices that empower students through creative music-making, Katherine currently teaches composition and orchestration at Mannes School of Music. She a doctoral candidate at Columbia University and an alumnus of the Juilliard School. Her chamber works are published by Schott PSI NY.

Katherine documents her lived experiences on the page, with each composition serving as a diary of what has captivated her curiosity. When she's not creating, she's collecting inspiration from the nearest botanical gardens, Rimbaud’s poetry, or her feline sidekick, Zarathustra.

CARSON COOMAN

Quintet for Bassoon and Strings

Quintet for Bassoon and Strings was commissioned by The Commission Project and is dedicated to Klaus Heymann, in tribute for his invigoration of the classical recording industry and his enthusiastic support for the composers of our time.

The original conception for the work was devised during an extremely foggy week on Nantucket Island, Massachusetts in the summer of 2005. It is music deeply connected to the ocean landscape. Throughout the work, the strings often present a fog-like backdrop, through which the bassoon’s color emerges like a lighthouse beacon—lyrical and flexible.

The work opens with a series of interlocking, nebulous figurations in the strings that gradually build in intensity. The bassoon unfolds the work’s basic melodic material in a free solo that also increases in intensity. At the point of climax, the tempo suddenly slows dramatically, and a tender, lyrical cantilena emerges. As this music dissolves, a bouncy and energetic music takes the foreground. It climaxes in a bassoon cadenza. Though the bassoon has played the leader throughout, this is the first time it is heard unaccompanied. A brief, but vigorous afterglow recalls the opening of the work. The final section emerges out of it: a series of high, distant harmonics (perhaps harbor buoys) in the strings through which the bassoon sings a final song.

Carson Cooman (b. 1982) is an American composer with a catalog of hundreds of works in many forms—from solo instrumental pieces to operas, and from orchestral works to hymn tunes. His music has been performed on all six inhabited continents in venues that range from the stage of Carnegie Hall to the basket of a hot air balloon. Cooman’s music appears on over forty recordings, including more than twenty-five complete CDs on the Naxos, Albany, Artek, Gothic, Divine Art, Métier, Divisions, Convivium, Altarus, MSR Classics, Raven, and Zimbel labels.

Cooman’s primary composition studies were with Bernard Rands, Judith Weir, Alan Fletcher, and James Willey. As an active concert organist, Cooman specializes in the performance of contemporary music. Over 300 new compositions by more than 100 international composers have been written for him, and his organ performances can be heard on a number of CD releases and more than 3,000 recordings available online (representing the work of more than 600 composers).

Cooman is also a writer on musical subjects, producing articles and reviews frequently for a number of international publications. He serves as an active consultant on music business matters to composers and performing organizations, specializing particularly in the area of composer estates and archives. FINOLA MERIVALE

Arbores Erimus

Arbores Erimus was composed in 2013 for violinist Todd Reynolds. It is a sister piece to my 2011 work Arbores Erimus ... aut Cementum for cello and electronics. Both pieces reflect on mortality and are inspired by my sister's artwork — an abstract ink drawing of a tree, with a subtle outline of a human face forming the tree trunk. There is a mirror image of this face, upside down, on the opposite side. This painting instantly reminded me of a Thomas Hardy quote from his poem Drummer Hodge: "his northern breast and brain grow to some southern tree." I thought this was a beautiful and peaceful image of the cycle of life: death becomes part of new life. Arbores Erimus is an open score; the performer has the freedom to improvise on the notated material, and form their own reflections of the drawing, which is printed alongside the score.
